I need some information from you all. Who is more overweight in the universe? Man or Woman? :)

You can never actually answer that question. But neutral answer to it will be in everything it is always a "balance." You can see a fat woman anywhere on the street but when you look on another street, there lies a man fatter than that woman you just glance at. You can really never tell.

I think both have equal chances of being overweight. I don't see any issue here in the first place.
